Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Canadian Journal of Medicine and Surgery, Vol. 6: Toronto, July, 1899 The sources of the material are as follows: Suspected exudates have been received from 45 municipalities (in nine municipalities all the physicians send through the medical health officer); suspected tuberculous sputum, from 94 municipalities and 115 physicians; typhoid blood, 11 municipalities and 18 physicians. The work in the examination of sputum has shown a very marked increase, which seems to be continuing. By months the specimens of sputum have been as follows: January, 41; February, 51; March, 59; April, 67; May, 74. This makes for the first five months of the year almost as many specimens as during the whole of last year. For the first four months the total specimens were as follows: Sputum, 218 (with these I received 138 history cards); diphtheria, 202 specimens (for which I received 123 history cards); typhoid blood, 26 samples (for which I received 14 history cards); water samples - bacteriological, 13; chemical, 16; miscellaneous examinations, 51; total for first four months, 526. The largest number of history cards were received in the case of suspected tuberculous sputum, namely, 138. Although this number is not very large I have attempted to extract what information I can from these cards to submit to you. Some of the results are interesting, but until we possess a much larger number of cases, must be taken with reserve. Of the 138 cases in which cards were sent in 57 were positive, 81 negative. Upon the history card the age of patient is asked. The results according to age are as follows: Under 10 years: 2 specimens (1 positive, 1 negative),...
