Oats, barley, and wheat, where they have been cultivated with care, have ripened, and come to perfection. I have exhibited to corn-factors in this country samples of the produce, and they assured me they were of the finest decription; and it is a fact can be proved, that potatoes and oats grown in Newfoundland now command at St. John s a higher price than articles of the same kind imported. The meadow ground in Newfoundland, is very fine, and I have heard good judges state that the quality of the grass, and its produce, in many instances was equal to good grounds in Ireland, and better than the generality of ground in Scotland. I have got a small estate in the neighbourhood of St. John s, part of which I farm; I have planted annually, for the last four years, from sixty to seventy barrels of potatoes, and they have averaged in produce twelve to one; and I have been assured by others, that they have frequently had twenty and twenty-five barrels of potatoes produced from one barrel. There is a very fine farm adjoining mine, owned and cultivated by Messrs. William and Henry Thomas, one of the first mercantile firms in St. John s. They have a Scotch steward, a Mr. Read, to manage their farm, a man of intelligence and well acquainted with the principles and science of agriculture. This farm has produced, under the management of Mr. Read, most...
